EDITOR'S NOTES

Autumn/winter has to be my favourite fashion season. All those razor-sharp coats, soft cashmere knits, practical-but-chic boots... It's a season where you can dress up or down impeccably, whatever the occasion. The art of dressing with innate style is something that our Parisian cover star, Caroline de Maigret, has mastered with a suitable dose of je ne sais quoi. Photographed by Boo George, our Modern Muse shoot, starring de Maigret, is a masterclass in effortless luxe-bohemian dressing for the modern woman. For de Maigret, it's the woman behind the dress that matters. 'Sexy for me is in the attitude, the gestures, the way you talk, a woman's pose,' she says. 'I love women who are beautiful, but when you can see there is something more in the eyes.' She dissects the secrets to French dressing on page 54.

We also had the honour of photographing the inspirational supermodel Alek Wek for this issue. As she showcases AW14's most striking eveningwear, Wek's beauty and strength are captured on film by Ben Weller and style director Vickie Keeble, while writer Clare Coulson uncovers the moving story behind her stellar career (page 76).

Elsewhere, contributing fashion editor Verity Parker hits the slopes with photographer Benjamin Vnuk to photograph the coldest weather looks of AW14 for our Sub Zero story (page 66). Ruby Warrington catches up with styling and beauty legend Linda Rodin in New York (page 38), while writer Lynn Yaeger explores how the most inspiring fashion icons of the 1960s and 1970s are influencing the runway collections now. Read her piece, Icons of the Season, on page 29 for a lesson in enduring chic.

I hope you enjoy this issue of The Style Report – see it as your guide to dressing in a beautiful, empowering way. As the inimitable Wek says, for our #StyleIs campaign, 'Style is what you make of it.'
