If you think you've forgotten your Twitter password, it may take several minutes to re-set it. You can reset your password here, but be sure you're using the correct email address. Make sure your browser isn't blocking cookies (check the View menu or Tools menu and click Internet Options to check). Scroll down to the bottom of the page and click the Sign In button (you may need to scroll down a bit). If you're prompted to enter a new password, enter the new password, click the Change button, then click the Sign In button. If you've used an incorrect email address or password, click Reset Password and then click the Change button. If you still can't sign in, check your browser's cookies to make sure they haven't expired or are set to expire soon. If you are trying to reset a password and you are having this problem, use the Contact Us form to describe your problem and we'll do our best to help. Note: Resetting your password might take several minutes. In case of an error, please check the error message you get in the address bar of your browser. If you get a different error, or if you just want to know if we can help you, please contact us by clicking here. Note: Resetting your password might take several minutes.
